

At the rate subdivides or cutting up the land there may be none left by 2030. I suggest some of the following ideas. Every County should have a right to farm law. Farm land should be protected against developers. Realtors should let buyers know that there homes are located by farming operations and those farms have a right to farm and make them sign a contract that they will not protest against the farmer. Coming from Los Angeles I have seen to many farms turned into homes. Encourage farmers not to subdivide give them an incentive to stay on the farm. Extend the Williams act to include small farms. I have 15 acres and my children want to keep it that way.

Encourage people to buy locally and eat in season produce only. Pass more bills that encourage home cottages such as AB2168 that allows customers a greater selection to purchase jams and pastries etc from the farmer.

Start a campaign to let people know how much energy it takes to import food from other countries and that food grown in America is safer to eat and a lot fresher.

Get the EPA off of farmers back every year they come up with more ideas to make the price of food to go up. Farmers are on the average more conservative and have more respect for the land then the people in the city.

Thank you for your time

Johanna Trenergy