                Office of Civil Rights Office of Civil Rights: What is the term used when a wheelchair user has the wheels slanted outward?
What does ADA stand for?
What year did ADA go into effect?
                                        Americans with Disabilities Act (ADAThe
00:39:19
                Jessica Billingsley:
Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) was signed into law on July 26, 1990, by President George H.W. Bush.
                Javon Williams: ADA stands for Accessible Disabilities Act

                                                                        Recruit new employees to CDFA from the disabled community and, to the extent appropriate, help them navigate the state application / hiring process that there should be clear goals associated with each of these paths and that it would make sense to use these three disparate goals to define new committees

                Office of Civil Rights Office of Civil Rights: - participation with quarterly in-person meetings (hybrid for folks that don't feel comfortable or can't make it due to location/timing).

                Office of Civil Rights Office of Civil Rights: - goals are clearly defined, update the website with a section for each of these three committees/objectives and relevant resources (e.g. recent news stories in the awareness section, LEAP guidance in the employment section, mentoring program catering to disabled employees - just one idea I heard - for the accessibility section) - Have the committees be in charge of revamping their own section Justin Hopper: I would suggest sending this out to all members and 00:51:59
request responses by a certain date.
                Genevieve Walden:
                                        this is maybe option for future maybe talks
- cdcr has inmate training programs for service dogs at different locations, last year California State Prison, Sacramento started a program [https://www.cdcr.ca.gov/insidecdcr/2021/09/07/csp-sacramento-begins-training-servi ce-dogs/] but i don't have contact for someone to ask to talk
