

Striking gold at the

Marin County Fair and Exposition

The Marin County Fairgrounds is an economic, social and cultural treasure for local communities. In 2002, the fair contributed more than $20 million in economic impact to Marin County, created 204 local jobs and generated $187,110 in local tax revenues.^{1 2 3}

The Marin County Fair and Exposition, a county entity, operates and conducts the fairgrounds and annual fair. Despite the fair organization's official status as part of the California network of fairs, it does not receive money from the state general fund. Rather, it is funded through revenues it generates locally and $124,000 it receives annually from a licensing fee on wagers placed on horse racing. Pari-mutuel wagering on horse racing in California was allowed through a constitutional amendment in 1933, with a portion of the revenues designated to support the network of California fairs.

The California Department of Food and Agriculture's Division of Fairs and Expositions engaged the firm of KPMG LLP to measure the annual economic and social impacts of the Marin County Fair and Exposition and produce a report detailing their findings.⁴ Based on information presented in this report, the fair organization should be considered a gold mine for their community and the Golden State.

Economic Impact: At the Assayer's Office

In 2002, the fair organization created significant economic impacts on the local economy.

- Overall impact of spending by all participants at fairtime and year-round events resulted in a total economic impact on the county of more than $20 million.

- Each dollar spent by the fair organization and year-round event participants generates an estimated 22 cents of additional spending in the county, for a total impact of $1.22 per dollar spent.

Agriculture: The Gold Nugget

A central feature of the fair is to educate people about the importance of agriculture in California.

- Seventy percent of fairgoers felt that they knew more about agriculture after going to the fair.
- During 2002, the fair judged 5,516 exhibits, including 730 agricultural exhibits. This resulted in $43,277 paid in prize money to fair participants.
- The fair's junior exhibit program is a learning laboratory that makes agricultural education come to life. The program gives young people an opportunity to demonstrate new knowledge, compete and be rewarded by ribbons and prize money.

Fair-Related Businesses: Services to a Golden Industry

Fair-related businesses provide many goods and services that are essential to the fair experience.

- Commercial exhibitors generated $373,808 in local spending, $125,123 in personal income, four local jobs and $4,599 in local taxes. Attendee spending on commercial exhibitor merchandise totaled $746,766, which generated $9,335 in local taxes.

Community Groups: Mining for Gold

- In 2002, nonprofit groups raised $80,422 at the Marin County Fairgrounds for community programs and services.
- Nonprofit organizations used the money to fund scholarships, educational programs and club activities.

Attendees: A Golden Treasure

Californians love their fairs and fairground events.

- Fairtime attendance was 108,000 in 2002, and year-round events attracted another 400,000 people. Total annual attendance at the Marin County Fairgrounds was 508,000, which represents 203 percent of the county's population.
- Year-round events demonstrate how well-planned and creative programming can generate community involvement and local revenues. Attendee spending at year-round events totaled $8.5 million.
- The average visitor attends the fair 2.1 times per year and lives within 100 miles.

Social and Cultural Impacts: Giving Back

While the economic impact of the fair is remarkable, it is the social and cultural impacts that may leave the most lasting impression on Californians.

- The fair provides a focal point for community members to celebrate their heritage, compete in a variety of events, hold family reunions, display and view artwork, learn about other cultures, premier new inventions, and showcase the best of California.
- Ninety-five percent of attendees agreed that the fair provided worthwhile community benefits.

Conclusion: A Golden Legacy

As this profile of the Marin County Fair and Exposition illustrates, fairs entertain and educate, but they also have immense economic, educational, social and cultural impacts. Economic impacts range from spending by attendees and businesses to nonprofit fundraising to job creation and to tax revenues. From people's paychecks to community services, the return on investment from fairs is widespread.

Fairs, however, represent much more than dollars-and-cents. Fairs offer a link between urban and rural California. They serve as tools for educating Californians about the importance of agriculture and introducing young people to both traditional and innovative aspects of life on the farm.

Fairs reach far beyond their agrarian roots and encourage industries and individuals to strive for excellence through competitions. Winning the blue ribbon at a fair competition is a great incentive to showcase the best of California.

Finally, through their social and cultural impacts, fairs embody the community spirit and highlight the diversity of the Golden State.

¹ The economic impacts presented in this profile are local in nature and are for Marin County only. Economic impacts presented in Fairs: Exploring a California Gold Mine are for the entire state of California. Since the impact areas in the two studies are different, results of the two studies are not directly comparable.

³ Jobs are measured by full-time equivalent counts. Due to the heavy reliance on temporary and part-time workers, the actual number of jobs is much greater.
