FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Question: The form requires me to self certify that I “am knowledgeable and intend to produce in accordance with good agricultural practices”. Does this mean I must adhere to all “guidelines” published by the Department?

Answer: No, the self certification acknowledges your intent to produce in accordance with good agricultural practices. The Department has provided its Small Farm Food Safety Guidelines as a resource to assist producers.

Question: How do I register if I operate a “single-farm CSA” but also sell to others as part of a “multi-farm CSA”?

Answer: You would check both “Single-farm CSA” and “Multi-Farm CSA” under Section B of the registration form.

Question: If I already have my organic registration or certified producers certificate, am I exempt from this registration?

Answer: No, each program has different requirements specific to the production and methodology used when selling.

Question: What if I sell to more than three CSA's?

Answer: Please attach a separate list with all the CSA's in which you currently are associated.
